Defense Bond Sale Begins

Sale of National Defense Savings bonds opened today all over the nation, and the public's response was whole-hearted, as to be expected of America. For whatever division of opinion exists as to our future course in the European war we are united on the principal that we must have an all-powerful war arm, never knowing exactly how or where future events may compel us to use it.

Armament costs money, and today America is subscribing that money as fast as she ever subscribed it in 1917-18.

And the generation which was of adult age back in 1917-18 knows that while our country looked on that war as something of an expeditionary lark abroad, the atmosphere today is grimmer, more menacing to our immediate neighborhood and our way of life.

At times it seems inconceivable that matters could be thus. We live on a far continent, settled by ancestors who were profoundly glad to be rid of Europe and Europe's troubles. But the days become years, and the years become centuries, and 1941 discloses a world in which warplanes, submarines and enemy agents move so swiftly and at such distances that no people and no government can feel really safe regardless how many measured miles lie between them and the nearest visible conflict.

But trouble is merely another day to the man who has faithfully prepared for it.

America is preparing. And not the least of it is today's demonstration of confidence in the initial National Defense Savings Bond sale.

Vincent Miles of Arkansas Is Found Shot

Postal Solicitor General Found With Shotgun at His Side

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Vincent M. Miles, 56, of Ft. Smith, Ark., solicitor general for the Postoffice Department, was under treatment at emergency hospital for gunshot wounds Thursday.

Detective Sergeant Hugh Jones of the Arlington county police said a 12-gauge shotgun was found near Miles by the attorney's wife, who heard the shot and ran to her husband's room, where she found him lying on the floor.

Physicians said Miles was suffering from a wound in the chest. Hospital attendants reported Miles' condition was improving steadily.

Scheduled for L. R. Speech

Vincent M. Miles, one-time candidate for the United States Senate, and long a well-known Arkansas political figure, was scheduled to be the principal speaker at the state convention of the National Association of Postmasters at Little Rock Friday and Saturday, May 2-3.

Russian-Turk Deal Looms

Soviet Ambassador Leaves Turkish Capital

ISTANBUL, Turkey —(AP)—The Soviet ambassador to Turkey was reported Thursday to have left the capital for an undisclosed destination.

The Russian Embassy refused to disclose his whereabouts.

Political quarters attached much importance to the report of armed German troops in Finland.

It added to the belief of some sources that the Turks and Russians are in close consultation.

Swear By New Movie Script

MIAMI, Fla. —(AP)—To script writers Dan Gordon and Ted Pierce, working on a Fleischer movie cartoon called "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," went the unique job of thinking up new cuss words.

"Even bugs get sore at times," Producer Dave Fleischer told them. "It's up to you fellows to coin some words."

The writers produced: "Oh, whistle a thistle!" "Sufferin' snappers!" "By dandelion!"

"They think their best one is simply: 'Gnats!'"

British Forces at Tobruk Still Hold Out

BERLIN —(AP)—The German air force unleashed an intensive offensive in North Africa, bombing British troop columns and artillery positions in advance of German ground forces, authorized sources said Thursday.

Italian troops were said to have co-operated with the Germans in the operations around Tobruk.

Battle at Tobruk

CAIRO (AP)—Axis troops penetrated the outer defenses of British-held Tobruk Thursday morning but "fighting is continuing" at the Libyan port, British headquarters said Thursday.

Its communiqué said the attack was launched Wednesday night by infantry striking at the hold-out British garrison inside the Axis lines "in some strength, supported by numerous tanks."

The British have held out under siege at Tobruk for about three weeks despite the Axis re-conquest of Libya, Germany and Italian units swept beyond, by-passing the stronghold, and crossed from Libyan to Egyptian soil in the region of Salum, 80 miles eastward.

In that time the British garrison has been under almost constant air attack and has repelled several mechanized thrusts. Nevertheless it has taken the initiative several times, officers reporting stories into the Axis lines and the capture of some prisoners.

From Child's Play

While playing along the Orange and Vaal rivers, Boer children gathered pretty stones. Their collections were found to include carnelians, jaspers, garnets, agates, and rock crystals, some of which were found to be real diamonds. Thus, from child's play, started the profitable South African diamond-mining industry.

The Boys in Company 'A'

By PVT. TERRELL HUTSON

Food

The Army travels on its stomach as is old military saying and is true in Company "A", the food has gotten better and better and the company hikes further and further.

The kitchen has all the latest equipment, and the cook's are able to prepare a much better meal.

The old idea of the army eating nothing but beans is a "lot of hooey", the dietitians of the army have worked out menus by which each man is given just the right amount of vitamins every meal.

There is usually meat for each meal, two vegetables, a salad dessert, bread and something to drink, either milk, coffee, hot chocolate or tea.

The meals are served family style. The dishes of food are laid on the table and each person helps himself, getting all he wants. A man can sit and eat until he has had enough then get up and leave knowing that a K. P. will wash the dishes. Yes, the food and service reminds one of home.

Gas

Cpl. Thomas Franks will never go in Captain Martin's tent again without a gas mask. Members of the gas school had put tear gas in Captain Martin's tent to demonstrate the effect it has on an individual. Forgetting this Captain Martin sent Cpl. Franks over to his tent after some books.

On entering the tent Cpl. Franks noticed the smoky substance on the floor but having never seen gas before didn't recognize it. Cpl. Franks never found the books, the gas soon got the best of him as large tears started rolling down his cheeks and Cpl. Franks left the tent faster than he went in.

U. S. Chamber Denounces National Defense Stoppages

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The U. S. Chamber of Commerce called on the nation's "patriotic labor and industrial leaders" Thursday to declare a moratorium against all strikes which would interrupt defense production.

Approving a resolution proposed by its resolutions committee the chamber declared it to be "intolerable" that anyone should threaten to interrupt defense production "for purposes of coercion," and added that "such acts are offensive against the public safety, and offenders should be subjected to the penalties of the laws they violate."

This and other policy statements were adopted without discussion as the chamber acted on the proposals of its committees.

Dover Shelled Across Channel

Germans Renew Bombardment From Long Siege Guns

ON THE ENGLISH SOUTHEAST COAST —(AP)—German cannon renewed the shelling of the Dover area Thursday night.

Shortly after 6 p. m. (11 a. m. CST) two salvos of four shells each thundered across the Dover strait from the Nazi-occupied French coast.

German long-range guns some 20 miles away across the narrow neck of the Channel pounded this area for seven hours Tuesday, contributing to the theory of some British sources that an invasion attempt may be next on the Nazi military schedule.

The guns roared Thursday night despite the limited visibility, and the explosion from each salvo shook the district for miles.

Helena Fire Proves Fatal to Three

WEST HELENA, Ark. —(AP)—Clarence Brown, 28, died in a hospital here Wednesday, bringing to three the number fatally injured while fighting a fire at the Chicago Mill and Lumber company's plant Tuesday night.

The other victims were Charles S. Moon, 48, Barton and George Leggett, 45, West Helena.

Total first-day sales in Hope up to noon Thursday were $8,500, with a strong prospect that the day's total would exceed $10,000, Postmaster Wilson said at 2 p. m.

U. S. Tankers to Carry Oil for Britain's War Effort

Will Bring Oil From South America to U. S. Ports

WASHINGTON —(AP)—In quick response to Roosevelt's request for ships for this country's "all-out aid to the democracies" the Maritime Commission made plans Thursday to place 50 American tankers in the service of the British within the next few days.

All operators of American tankers of over 5,000 gross tons are being called on for aid in the program.

The tentative plan does not call for a transfer of registry of tankers to the British but for their use outside the war zone for the direct benefit of the British.

Under the proposal the tankers would be operated from oil-producing countries along the north coast of South America to U. S. north Atlantic ports.

At the north Atlantic ports the oil would be transferred to British tank-ers for the remainder of the trip.

Convoy Debate Continues
WASHINGTON —(AP)—The senate Thursday heard a demand from Sen. Guffey, D., Pa., that the American navy be assigned to convoy duty while Sen. Tobey, R., N. H., announced that he would obtain a roll call vote on his anti-convoy resolution by offering it as an amendment to administration legislation.

Guffey, an administration supporter, told his colleagues that cargo ships must be convoyed "at least within the limits of this hemisphere."

He added that it "certainly does not make sense to put war materials in boats which are to be sunk en route to Britain."

Sen. Tobey recalled that the senate foreign relations committee had declined to report to the senate his resolution forbidding convoys.

"I served notice at this time that when the ship-seizure bill comes to the floor I will introduce my anti-convoy bill," he said.

Germans Bomb Crete Harbor

Air Force Follows Flight of British, Greeks

BERLIN —(AP)—The German air force has followed up the flight of British and Greeks to the island of Crete with a new bombardment of ships in Suda harbor there, seriously damaging three vessels, the high command announced Thursday.

The ships were identified as a tanker and two large merchant ships. The mop-up of scattered detachments of British, Greek and Serb units in the southern Peloponnese continued, the daily communiqué said.

A dive-bombing of Tobruk, British-held harbor in North Africa, following "local successes" in reconnaissance operations by German and Italian troops in the area resulted in the sinking of a 5,000-ton merchantman ship and extensive destruction by fires in the Tobruk fortifications, the high command said.

R. R. Cornelius Dies Thursday

Well Known Fulton Man Succumbs at Shreveport

R. R. Cornelius, 74, of Fulton, well-known southwest Arkansas oilman and livestock dealer, died in a hospital at Shreveport early Thursday morning. He had been in ill health for several months.

Originally from Center Point, Mr. Cornelius moved to Hempstead when a small boy and had maintained residences at Hope, Fulton and McKame, Ark., since that time.

He was a well-known stock breeder and land owner. He entered the oil business several years ago and helped develop the McKame, Ark. field, of which he was part owner. He owned a large stock farm on Red river at Fulton where he had lived for the past 20 years.

Funeral services will be held at the McKame High School Auditorium at 2 o'clock Sunday. Burial will follow in the Oak Grove Cemetery near McKame.

Surviving are his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Silas Poe of Cisco, Texas, Mrs. A. L. King of Hope, Mrs. Tommy Parks of McKame, and a son, Paul Cornelius of Fulton.

Prepaid Tax Plan Studied

Treasury Considering Issuing Special Security

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced Thursday the Treasury was "working on a plan" to enable citizens to prepay their taxes under the heavy rates being considered by congress.

He said he could not give details, but generally the Treasury was thinking of selling a special kind of security which could be used by taxpayers to pay their taxes instead of paying cash.

Twin Thrust by Axis, on Canal and Egypt, Due

British Isles Braced for Long-Expected Invasion Attempt

By the Associated Press
3,000 Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg armies suffered "colossal" losses in men and machines in Greece, it was officially reported Thursday even as Britons rejoiced over the rescue of 48,000 of the 60,000 BEF troops who fought to defend the little Aegean kingdom.

A communiqué by the British Middle East command indicated at least some of the 9,000 remaining men were still being removed from the bullet-spattered beaches of the Grecian peninsula.

Total BEF casualties were listed at 3,000 killed and wounded.

Australia's acting prime minister, A. W. Fadden, announced the "colossal" German casualties. He gave no specific figures.

Simultaneously authoritative quarters in London said a second contingent of British troops had been landed at Basra, Iraq, at the head of the Persian gulf—apparently in a move to counter any German threat to Iraq's rich oil fields.

Other British troops landed there April 17 and 18.

Informed military circles in London freely predicted that a grand scale Nazi assault on Egypt and the Suez Canal by way of French-mandated Syria and Palestine would break within 10 days.

Axis Pioneer Move

At the same time, these sources said, "Axis columns" striking from Libya would join in a "giant pioneer movement."

Military experts in London noted signs, too, that Hitler now may attempt his long-threatened invasion of England. They gave six points:

1. Favorable weather ahead.
2. Mounting violence by the Nazi Luftwaffe in hitting Plymouth and Portsmouth naval bases in the last fortnight.
3. Increasing activity by German long-range guns on the French coast.
4. Stepped-up operations by Nazi U-boats in the Channel, including a bold raid along the Dover coast Tuesday.
5. Daylight aerial reconnaissance has been vastly increased.
6. Aid from the U. S. is now beginning to arrive in quantity.

Coinciding with this speculation, Soviet Russia issued a May Day pronouncement against violation of her frontiers.

Within 24 hours after the Soviet press asserted German troops were moving north through Finland with tanks and guns, Russia's defense commissar declared that the Red army was ready to "offer an annihilating rebuff to any encroachment by imperialists."

Iraq-British Crisis Near

British Demand Withdrawal of Iraq Troops

LONDON —(AP)—Authorized sources said Thursday Britain had demanded removal of an Iraq troop concentration which was regarded as a threat to a British air base.

This disclosure was made soon after the British landed troops at Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf, to defend rich oil holdings there.

A diplomatic correspondent of Reuters, official British news agency, said that Iraq authorities were being pressed to "remove the troops as soon as possible to avoid the risk of an incident at the air base at Habbaniyah, on the Euphrates river, about 60 miles west of Basra."

"Reports from Baghdad indicated the difficulty had arisen with the presence of British forces in that area," he wrote.

Other sources indicated the size of the British force had caused concern in the Iraq government.

'Lady From Cheyenne' Opens at Saenger Theater Thursday

Loretta Young Heads Cast in Newest Comedy
Producer-Director Frank Lloyd Turns Out Another Hit

The richly entertaining films that have come to be expected from the veteran Frank Lloyd are continued in his latest production, "The Lady From Cheyenne," a Universal comedy starring Loretta Young, which opens Thursday at the Saenger theater.

Producer-Director Lloyd strikes a novel and amusing note in "The Lady From Cheyenne" by relating his story in a modern breezy tone against a background of frontier Wyoming in the 1870s.

The picture not only is something new for Lloyd, but it is likewise the "Western" role in the distinguished career of Loretta Young. Her performance assuredly must be considered one of the best of the current season.

Familiar Favorites
 Matching Miss Young's versatile performance are such well known players as Robert Preston, Edward Arnold, Gladys George, Frank Craven, Jessie Ralph, Stanley Fields, Samuel S. Hinds and Willie Best, who head the supporting cast.

Miss Young portrays a naive but determined young schoolteacher who comes out from Philadelphia to live on the frontier. She quickly becomes involved in a conflict with a gang of crooked politicians, and she adopts some amusingly surprising methods to break their hold on the settlers.

Keeping pace with her fight against the gang is her romance with Preston, a love story that unfolds into a highly dramatic climax.

Memorable Features
 Lloyd, famous for such pictures as "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Cavalcade," "The King" and others, has directed "The Lady From Cheyenne" with a sure hand and a lively sense of comedy values. The novelty of the plot comes from the original story by Jonathan Finn and Theresa Oaks, and full advantage of the situations are taken by Kathryn Scola and Warren Duff in writing the screenplay.

Preston Featured
 Robert Preston, who sprang into prominence by his fine work in "Union Pacific" and "North West Mounted Police," here plays his first leading role, and his performance carries him well on the road to stardom.

Edward Arnold, always an important contributor to the pictures in which he appears, has an interestingly new characterization as a tongue-in-cheek politician who wants people to like him.

Gladys George returns to the screen after an absence of almost a year to portray a philosophical dancehall belle who befriends Miss Young. Also happily cast are Jessie Ralph as a townswoman, Frank Craven as a crusading newspaper editor, Samuel S. Hinds as the territorial governor, and Willie Best as the cloakroom attendant at the Wyoming legislature.

Good Production Values
 As associate producer, Jack Skirball has given "The Lady From Cheyenne" production values in keeping with the story and cast, and the photography by Milton Krosner is excellent. The musical score was composed under the general supervision of Charles Previn, who also collaborated with Sam Lerner in composing an original song for the picture titled "The Ladies From Paroo."

"The Great Lie"

In Washington

By PETER EDSON, NEA Washington Correspondent

Treasury's Smart Boys — Who Know All About It — Mastermind Tax Bill, but Mere Congressmen Write It

WASHINGTON — The text for today's reading will be a line from Sidney Hillman:

"The ways of democracy are perhaps the most troublesome, but they are best in the long run."

Mr. Hillman uttered the line in approval of apology for the good old American way of settling strikes by arguing them out after they've happened. Today's subject has nothing to do with labor disturbances, but with that other equally disturbing subject of yes, taxes.

Specifically, the increased taxes you will pay on this year's income when you make out your return next March and, before that, the increased nuisance taxes and luxury taxes you will pay to help finance the defense effort.

Works Like This
 What is the "way of democracy" with regard to this new tax bill? It goes something like this:

Ever since the last tax bill was written the tax research division of the treasury has been making studies of how this legislation could be improved, where more revenue might be obtained in new taxes, where existing taxes were unjust and how other countries have been levying taxes to get money for prosecution of their wars. Day in and day out, this division of tax research knows more about taxes than anyone else in the country.

While all this studying has been going on, congress has been appropriating money right and left—a billion here, a few hundred millions there, seven billion there. It is all for the good of the country and much of it is for defense. Finally, somebody gets around to adding this up. It is discovered that national defense expenditures will run $32 billion, plus $7 billion aid to Britain. Not all this is to be spent at once. Figuring down to what the government will spend in the fiscal year from July 1, 1941, to June 30, 1942, the treasury comes up with a figure of $19 billion, $12 billion of which will be for defense and $7 billion to run the rest of the government.

Treasury's next step is to decide how much of this shall be raised by taxation and how much by borrowing. The answer is two-thirds by taxation, one-third by borrowing. Two-thirds of $19 billion is $12.6 billion. Treasury knows that existing tax legislation will yield $9.1 billion. Subtracting, it finds that $3.5 billion net must be raised from new taxes.

Here the division of tax research goes to work with its adding machines, and after months of calculation, it comes out with a program that will yield the additional $3.5 billion required. But does the division of tax research write the new tax bill? Not for a minute. It knows all the answers but this is a democracy, and in a democracy the chosen representatives of the people write the laws and, furthermore, the Constitution says that all bills to tax the people must originate in the house of representatives. So the job of writing the new tax bill is turned over to the House Ways and Means Committee, of which Robert L. Doughton, Laurel Springs, N. C., farmer by profession, has been chairman since 1933.

The committee holds hearings. On the first day, the secretary of the treasury and his aides are there with figures. The hearings are public and any screwball with a crank theory of taxation can and probably will have a chance to air his views.

Sub-Committee Does It
 When the hearings are over, the drafting job begins. Twenty men obviously can't write anything so that is turned over to a sub-committee. Hard-working Capt. Jere Cooper of Dyersburg, Tenn., has that job. He will give it day and night attention and aided and abetted by the legislative drafting service of the house, the committee's own tax experts and the treasury boys, a bill finally will be born, reported out to the house, argued about, changed a little, and finally passed.

It goes to the senate, where chairman Pat Harrison's Finance Committee will go to work on it. There will be more public hearings. Here the lobbyists will go to work. Representatives of high-powered taxpayer associations will argue that corporation taxes are too high, and representatives of the survivors of the dead who couldn't take it with them will argue that estate taxes are too high. Eventually, everyone will have had his say, the senate committee will report out its modified bill, the senate will argue, the senate will pass.

Back to the house then for conference. The Harrison and Doughton debating societies will horse-trade around till they can get something satisfactory to both teams. Repassage, then, and over to the White House for the President to sign. Another legal egg will have been laid.

Crusaders Are Still Working

Risk Ridicule, Assault in Defense of Principle

AP Feature Service

Always there have been crusaders—people willing to endure ridicule, assault, even death in defense of their principles. Eventually many of those who stuck it out became honored in their own and other lands. This is one thing that keeps new crusaders coming up. Here are five who at times have braved scorn for causes not universally popular—but they are still at it.

Against Religion
 Charles Smith, brisk, keen-eyed president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, is no armchair theorist.

He has braved as much danger as any union organizer—or missionary. In 1928 the Association sent him to the house, argued about, changed a little, and finally passed.

It goes to the senate, where chairman Pat Harrison's Finance Committee will go to work on it. There will be more public hearings. Here the lobbyists will go to work. Representatives of high-powered taxpayer associations will argue that corporation taxes are too high, and representatives of the survivors of the dead who couldn't take it with them will argue that estate taxes are too high. Eventually, everyone will have had his say, the senate committee will report out its modified bill, the senate will argue, the senate will pass.

It goes to the senate, where chairman Pat Harrison's Finance Committee will go to work on it. There will be more public hearings. Here the lobbyists will go to work. Representatives of high-powered taxpayer associations will argue that corporation taxes are too high, and representatives of the survivors of the dead who couldn't take it with them will argue that estate taxes are too high. Eventually, everyone will have had his say, the senate committee will report out its modified bill, the senate will argue, the senate will pass.

Back to the house then for conference. The Harrison and Doughton debating societies will horse-trade around till they can get something satisfactory to both teams. Repassage, then, and over to the White House for the President to sign. Another legal egg will have been laid.

HE ALWAYS MAKES A HIT NOW!

When the hearings are over, the drafting job begins. Twenty men obviously can't write anything so that is turned over to a sub-committee. Hard-working Capt. Jere Cooper of Dyersburg, Tenn., has that job. He will give it day and night attention and aided and abetted by the legislative drafting service of the house, the committee's own tax experts and the treasury boys, a bill finally will be born, reported out to the house, argued about, changed a little, and finally passed.

Arkansas to campaign against a bill, in the legislature to forbid the teaching of evolution in public schools.

He was thrown into jail in Little Rock when he opened headquarters. Released, he reopened his headquarters, was nearly mobbed before he was rescued by police.

Smith opposes religion because, he says, there is no proof of the existence of God, and if there were a God he would not allow suffering or crime. He says churches are parasites on civilization.

A kindly, silver-haired old gentleman named George W. Crabbe (he's general secretary of the Anti-Saloon League of America) has been fighting in the cause of temperance all his life.

He was a fire-eater in 1906, when he became attorney for the Ohio Anti-Saloon League. Now he's more gentle, but his jaw firms when he outlines the work his organization has ahead.

A recent advisory referendum in South Carolina showed the people wanted the state's liquor license law repealed. Crabbe says that this, coupled with local option gains in other states, reflects the general opinion that "something must be done about it."

"Moreover," he adds, "restrictions against liquor must be made a vital part of defense plans."

Roland D. Sawyer is a stern-eyed

Congregational minister who believes that, aside from being irreverent, profanity "shows lack of refinement and slow mentality."

He quotes Ralph Waldo Emerson's saying: "Profanity should be seldom used and should be reserved for occasions which demand rare emphasis."

Mr. Sawyer, who recently retired from the Massachusetts legislature after 27 years, organized the Anti-Profanity League in 1902 at Hanson, Mass. The next year 12,000 members attended a mass meeting in Boston.

The league has no paid workers. Mr. Sawyer believes that the fact that it now has 34,000 members in all parts of the world shows how deeply Christian people feel hurt by the prevalent profanity which has become a sad habit with so many.

Against Smoking
 In 1909 Dr. Charles Pease persuaded the New York City council to forbid smoking in subways. He is an anti-tobacco crusader, but in this case his point was simply that people who don't smoke shouldn't have to endure tobacco fumes.

He says that "the tobacco people fought hard... I received many letters threatening my life. Undertakers were sent to my home... But I cannot be frightened in that way."

The next year Dr. Pease organized the Non-Smokers' Protective League and in 1911 obtained passage of an ordinance forbidding smoking in elec-trains and surface cars.

Now 86 years old, dry-voiced Dr. Pease is fighting for laws to ban smoking in any public or semi-public place.

Against Executions
 Motherly, gray-haired Dr. Miriam Van Waters has learned about crime and punishment in her job as superintendent of the Massachusetts Reformatory for Women.

She believes that crime is never prevented by fear of punishment—even the death penalty. This belief brought her into the American League to Abolish Capital Punishment, of which she now is president.

Dr. Van Waters (thinks capital punishment is bad also because it is unchristian and degrading to the community, and because under it innocent persons may by mistake be killed).

The World Has Caught Up With Us

Isolation is a part of the American dream. A great part of the people who came to this country from abroad from 1807 to 1941—a long time, mark you—came to get away from something. They came to get away from persecution, from religious wars, from economic distress. For a long time America was a haven.

Today America is a part of the world. It does not matter that we do not wish it so. It does not matter that there is a little particle of tradition down in the bottom of every one of us which cries, portentously, "No, no!" It is true. Science, that obliterator of time and space, has brought the world into a unity. There is no place that is today "out of the world"—not Tahiti, not the mountains of Ecuador.

One may regret this, but it is true. Nothing could be more hopeless than to base action on what used to be true, or on what we wish were true. Greenland was once remote, an unreal, stepping-stone for bombers, a danger, and the United States had better "be there first," no matter what the cost. For whatever that cost might be, it is less than the cost of yielding, without a struggle, the outer rampart.

A prominent Broadway leader of the show world has a motto, and isn't a bad one for nations, too. It is, "Don't kid yourself." That is what we are doing when we try to reassure ourselves that the United States can go on, unmolested, to achieve a destiny separate and unique in an interlaced world. It can't be done any more, if it ever could.

The change is a change of this century. It is during the past 30 years that transport has speeded up; until then, men traveled at scarcely greater speed than the Romans. The world in which the United States was able to win the revolution (with the invaluable help of a French fleet) continued down to World War days. It was not until after that war that U. S. Navy NC-boats made the first Atlantic crossing by airplane. The world grew smaller then, the world changed, more than it had changed in a similar period since Salamis.

There is no salvation for the United States in mental retreat to a dream of childhood, any more than there is for an individual. We are grown up now, and the world, from which we might have liked to withdraw, is on our doorstep. We must play our part in that world, and play it like free men and women.

Time, and the shrinking of the world by science, have left us no choice.

 What would you do if—
 You are a bride and your wedding is to be a very small one, and you are not having engraved invitations—
 (a) Write notes in longhand to all the persons you and your fiancé wish to be present?
 (b) Decide to have invitations printed, and so avoid the expense of engraved invitations and the trouble of writing individual notes?

- Answers
 1. The parents of the bride.
 2. "The honor of your presence." (The old-fashioned spelling of honor is used on wedding invitations.)
 3. No. Either write, "The Misses Smith" under the parents' names or send each grown member of the family his own invitation.
 4. No.
 5. It is enough to give the name of the city.

Bureau Helps Reduce Farm Truck License

Farm Bureau Legislation Proves Valuable to Farmers

Every farmer in Hempstead county who uses a one-ton trailer for hauling cotton and other agricultural commodities will have to pay only $4.00 per year license fees, or one-half of the amount heretofore in force, as a result of legislation sponsored by the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation during the recent session of the Arkansas General Assembly. Vice-President T. A. Cornelius of the Hempstead County Farm Bureau announced.

"This one piece of legislation is representative of the splendid work that the Farm Bureau is doing year in and year out and answers all questions by farmers as to why they should join the Farm Bureau," Mr. Cornelius said. "By having licenses fees on trailers used principally in the hauling of agricultural products reduced in half, the Farm Bureau will make possible a savings of thousands of dollars to farmers in this county in 1941 and subsequent years. The six dollars per year that each farmer who operates a one-ton trailer will save will pay his dues twice and then some since the membership in the Farm Bureau is only $2.50 per year."

Among the other legislation, most of which was directly sponsored by the Farm Bureau and all of which was a part of the organization's legislative program this year, according to Mr. Cornelius, included:

1. The highway bonded indebtedness refunding program which will save Arkansas taxpayers millions of dollars in interest rates, remove road improvement district bonds from against farm lands as a lien, and make possible construction of new highways, including those classified as farm-to-market roads, and adequate maintenance of old ones.
2. Adequate appropriations for educational institutions serving farmers, including: Extension Service, $265,000; Experiment Stations, $100,000; and Vocational Education, $150,000.
3. Funds for Bang's disease control work, which will be matched by federal funds, in the amount of $32,201. These funds are retroactive and can be used to pay farmers some $17,000 in indemnities for animals condemned in the control program last year.
4. Assurance that feed and fertilizer sold to farmers will be subjected to rigid tests which will guarantee farmers that the feed and fertilizer they buy will not be misrepresented.
5. A "fair test and price" dairy law that will make possible a premium price for dairymen, large and small, for premium products. This law will be administered by the State Health Department and tests of milk and cream by purchasers will be counter-checked by the State. Rigid sanitation regulations for processing plants will be imposed. Dairymen in the Farm Bureau predict that this legislation will remove price discriminations from against Arkansas dairy products in out-of-state markets.

6. Rural school management program, designed to give rural schools a management system comparable to that now in operation for urban schools. Consolidation is a matter for the people in each individual district to decide. A rural school is defined as any school in a community of 2,500 or less population.

7. Small tax on milled rice when it is processed, the revenue to go into a fund for the promotion of rice for human consumption and for finding new uses for rice. This legislation was sponsored at the insistence of County Farm Bureau in rice areas.

"A large portion of the Farm Bureau's legislative program was pushed to successful completion this year and will do much to advance the interests of Arkansas agriculture," Mr. Cornelius said. "Farmers must have representation in the state legislative halls when matters of interest to them are being considered and this can be done only through an organization, which the Farm Bureau provides."

"Agriculture is the business of farmers, whether it involves legislation or anything else, and if farmers do not attend to it no one else will do it for them."

WE, THE WOMEN

Mother Should Be "Glamor Girl" in Children's Eyes

By RUTH MILLETT

It isn't enough for a woman to have glamor for her husband—she should have it for her children, too. That is what Elaine Carrington, herself mother of two children, told me. And it's a cinch that little Mrs. Carrington, who writes the radio serials "When a Girl Marries" and "Paper Young's Family," is a glamorous creature in the eyes of her young son and daughter.

Mrs. Carrington thinks that the way for a mother to be glamorous to her own children is "to have a life of her own apart from them. So that they see her, as they always see their father, as one who is an important person with his own affairs to tend to."

The "life of her own" that Mrs. Carrington recommends doesn't have to be a career or a part-time job. It is even better, perhaps, that the mother's outside life be just an expression of her own interests and her own talents.

The thing that makes me agree with Mrs. Carrington is knowing an elderly woman who didn't bother to make herself anything at all but her husband's wife and her children's mother. Her husband is dead now, and her children grown. She lives with a

Better Homes Week Shows Much Activity in County

Hempstead county Better Homes Program is underway with plans being made and reported by the various county committees that were appointed by the Executive Council of Home Demonstration Clubs. Saturday afternoon, April 26, a group of interested people met in the courtroom of the courthouse to plan the program for Better Homes week beginning April 27th through May 3rd.

Arkansas participates in the National Better Homes program each year that is sponsored by the Purdue University. Better homes is not thought of as just one week's program, but all of the good achievements that are made throughout the whole year. Better Homes is taking the home as a unit—improving lawns, exterior improvement, interior improvement and the improvements that the family makes for themselves as better diets, a better health program, better babies, better gardens, better filled pantry shelves, better poultry, participation in Home Demonstration clubs and 4-H clubs and civic organizations in each village, community and neighborhood.

Better Homes will be exceedingly important this year with the National Defense Program in the Food and Feed Campaign that is sponsored by the Arkansas Extension Service. To date 707 farm families over Hempstead county have enrolled in the Food and Feed Campaign to produce more food and feed than ever before. This is a campaign that farmers pledge with themselves to improve crops. At the end of the year the families who live up to their agreement will receive honorary certificates signed by state officials.

Tentative plans have been made for a county Better Homes program. The county chairman, Mary Claude Fletcher, home demonstration agent, presided at the county committee meeting Saturday afternoon. The county cleanup chairman, Judge Fred Luck, reported that the department of county roads is cooperating with the rural communities in establishing better roads, roadside improvement and clean-up campaign through the rural communities. Judge Luck is cooperating with the home demonstration county in building roads up to the community churches. This work will continue through the year.

The Urban committee, chairman, George W. Ware, director in charge of the Experiment Station in Hope, reported a clean-up campaign for Hope under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce and the Secretary R. P. Bowen. An urban tour will be held May 8 including a Hobby show at the recreational building at the Experiment Station. All communities are invited to participate in this tour.

County home improvement committee, Oliver L. Adams, county agent, chairman, Buford Poe, Soil Conservationist, co-chairman, reported that the daughter, and though she is taken care of physically, she doesn't get much out of life. For it is too late now for her to decide to be a person in her children's eyes. She was always a drudge to them and now she is a drudge who is no longer able to do any work. "Being a Good Mother"

They aren't interested in her or her opinions, and she can't be intelligently interested in them, because they have grown too far away from her through the years. (The children are selfish, you may say. But many children turn out to be selfish.) That mother pinned her faith on "being a good mother," which used to mean slaving and sacrificing for children and demanding nothing for one's self.

How much happier she would be today, and how much happier her daughter would be to have her around if she hadn't neglected herself all through the years—if she had tried to hold a little glamor for her children, by being interested in things outside of them.

work started in landscaping improvement will be continued throughout the county. The Patmos community was pointed out as a special demonstration community in rural landscaping.

The live-at-home committee chairman, Mrs. Shirley Stuart, president of the Home Demonstration Council will be continued through the Food and Feed Campaign enrollment cards being filled out by each farm family in the county. Year round gardens, improved pastures and milk cows, better poultry, better storage facilities, more canned products—these reports will come in from all of the 42 organized home demonstration clubs.

The health committee chairman, Miss Cecelia Hughes, reported a continuation of the Better Babies program with 73 babies attending clinics already in 1941. The better babies committee in each home demonstration club will continue their food and nutrition campaign with better diets for farm families.

Publicity and program committee chairman, Mary Claude Fletcher, reports that the county papers will participate in the Better Homes program. The Patmos Home Demonstration club will sponsor a Better Homes recreational night Saturday, May 3, at the Patmos school. Ozan-St. Paul will have a community picnic May 3, beginning at 10 a. m. at Goodlett's Gin.

DeAnn will have a community tour of improved homes on May 2 at 2 p. m. On May 2 at 9:30 a. m. Washington will have a leadership school which will include a comforter demonstration at the Old Capitol building. All surrounding home demonstration clubs clothing, household art, home management and mattress chairman will be invited.

Evening Shade will have a community program. Shover Springs will have a recreational meeting. Old Liberty will have a community tour. Other programs will be scheduled this week. Thirteen interested leaders attended the meeting held April 26th at the courthouse. The first leadership meeting for the comforter demonstration was held in Hope under the direction of Miss Sybil D. Bates, Extension specialist in home industries and Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, home demonstration agent. Sixteen leaders from Rocky Mount, Sardis, Liberty Hill, Allen, Hinton, Hopewell, Ozan-St. Paul, Melrose and Hope met at 2 p. m. and completed a comforter during the afternoon. After the county leadership meetings are held each home demonstration club will have a community demonstration in making one comforter before the 3000 comforters are made. This will be a part of the Better Homes program. The cotton mattress program is a part of the Better homes program and to date 6071 mattresses have been made in Hempstead county.

Below is a suggested program for Better Homes week according to Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, home demonstration agent:

- Sunday: Church day—Sermon: Character building in the home.
- Community Day—City officials, school officials, better homes committee on reception committee. Community supper. Community singing. Talk: "A Community of Better Homes and how each Family Can Help." Initiate drive for the cleanup of premises, vacant lots, mailbox improvement, the removal of advertising signs from houses and other home buildings.
- The School's contribution to Better Homes Day—Exhibit of articles made in home economics, manual arts, art department, i. e. Bird houses, lamps etc., parade of models in cotton dresses made by girls, appropriate for home, school, street and informal entertaining. Talk—Education for Life.
- Club Day—An analysis of our homes by club members. Are our houses attractive? convenient? do they meet our needs? do they reflect us? Talk—How to Select, Frame and Hang Pictures. Tea.
- Recreation Day—Hobby show in charge of different local groups. Home music program.

A Day Devoted to Foods—A cooking school. Discussion and preparation of several menus. Suggested menus for simple entertaining. Table set for simple luncheon, buffet supper, kitchen lunch. Display of kitchen labor-saving devices. Talk on merits and dangers of modern diets.

Garden Day—Exhibit of flowers appropriate for window boxes. Demonstration of arrangement of flowers for table. Talk—What Constitutes Good Planting of Shrubs and Trees about a House.

The County Council of Home Demonstration clubs is asking the cooperation of all merchants in Hope and other towns and villages throughout the county to take part on the Better Homes Display. Each civic organization is asked to cooperate with the Better Homes Program.

Experience
A constituent of a recently inaugurated governor called on him to apply for a position as highway maintenance man for his county. The following dialogue is reported to have taken place.
Constituent: "Governor, I support you in your race and I want you to give me the job as road maintenance man."
Governor: "Yes. Let me see. I believe my files show that you have had little or no experience as a road man, have you?"
Constituent: "Well, now let me see. Just how much experience have you had as a governor?"
Editor's Note: This man got the job.

CAROLYN WORKS FAST
CHAPTER XV

BOB came to Carolyn's home because it was the quickest way for them to meet. She had snatched on the first clothes available and she literally ran into the night when his car swerved to the curb. He stopped halfway out the car door, hatless, his hair uncombed, wearing not even a coat or tie. His voice was a study in misery.

"Oh, Bob!" She tried to speak calmly. "The X-999 was not on that freight train! It is still safe here in the city!"

"I helped put it on myself, yesterday morning!"

"No! You put on dummy packages! Bob—listen, I know you don't understand, but Ken Palmer and I removed those inner leaden boxes and substituted rocks! Yes, rocks!"

"But Carolyn—!" He was beginning to believe, at least to hope. He gripped her shoulders now.

"I was going to tell you but you were away all day yesterday. Ken and I did our work at 2 in the morning. The stuff is safe. I—Bob, I had a sort of tip. A hunch! Don't ask me any more yet. Just come on! Let me drive!"

She ran around to the wheel and when he had collected his wits again they were well out toward their Schoenfeld Laboratory.

"What are we going to do?" he asked.

"I want to stop your worrying. If you won't ask too many questions. Bob, I—oh, you must trust me! You must! I mean, about why I did it."

He was silent for a block longer.

"Of course, Carolyn. I am so deeply grateful now that I would do anything you ask. Frankly, I am almost sick with the letdown. You have no idea what a strain this has been!"

"Yes, I think I have."

She let him in and the door closed behind them. For a moment they stood in semi-darkness. Only the great looming form of the Schoenfeld cyclotron assailed them, silhouetted in part against the high windows. Lesser machines, bulky and strangely ominous even by day, were lurking beasts here at night, great black forms about the vast room.

"Perhaps it is best not to turn on the main lights," she said. "Wait—a desk lamp—"

She crossed to the sturdy oak cabinet table where work sheets were usually spread out. In a moment she had the small light burning.

"Bob—please."

He came over. He was still in somewhat of a daze. While he watched, she swung back one of the four broad bottom doors of the cabinet. Gingerly she then lifted the lid of a strong wooden packing box. Bob peered in.

He saw four small leaden cases, sealed, cushioned in crude but effective burlap padding. He knew them to be his own.

"Carolyn!" He barely breathed that, but it was a speech of infinite relief and gratitude.

REPORTERS flooded the laboratory, Bob hastened to go back downtown. He didn't want too much attention to him and his work. He explained to police that his shipment had been chemicals only and that he couldn't imagine who would steal them, nor why.

But one of the train robbers was caught. He talked freely.

"I tell you, I don't know what we was after!" he kept saying. "We was hired to bring off a heavy box. It musta been a money box, but somebody beat us to it and put in rocks! Springs and cotton around 'em, yeh! Damndest thing I ever seen. But we got paid first!"

She took him right into the compound and to the laboratory proper. He was surprised to see several of their hired guards still on duty. "I ordered them to stay," she explained. "And paid them."

She had a key to the laboratory door. "I copied your key, Bob. Had it done. Stuck yours on chewing gum to get a mold, then used candle wax. A locksmith cut one easily from that. I—forgive me, Bob! And wait."

By mid-morning Leana Sorni had returned, heard of the robbery and she rushed to Bob with every possible aid and sympathy. Carolyn left them at state police headquarters. She was strangely keyed up now. She even forgot to eat.

"I have to move fast!" she told herself, shrilly.

She inspected her purse. Then she called a taxi, went to a bank and took out all the $340 she had saved. Next she ordered a taxi driver to take her to the municipal airport, and there she made another business deal.

By noon her taxi driver had her back at the laboratory again, and when she alighted this time she smiled her sweetest at him and said, "I need a strong man to help me carry something."

"That's me, miss!" the driver answered with alacrity. "You want a trunk moved? I'll make room on the back rack."

"Not a trunk, a box. And—I'd be ever so much happier if it went inside. On the seat itself. I—here!" She thrust a $5 bill at him.

He grinned. "Lady, I'll carry the box in me teeth if you want!"

SHE asked two of the guards to help him. The box was small but astonishingly heavy. She explained, in partial truth, that it contained some leaden forms which Dr. Hale wanted moved, and some "other heavy junk." Her heart went bump-bump-bump double time during the whole loading procedure.

Some 40 minutes later she had transferred the box to an airplane, a powerful cabin ship now under her personal lease, with pilot awaiting orders. She told the pilot she would be back.

"We going after another box, miss?" her taxi driver asked as they drove away from the municipal air field this second time.

"No. After a—man."

"Hm—hm—hm!" He grinned. "Eloping, I bet!"

She sighed at that, in a much-needed relaxation. "I wish it were. Drive, how in the world does a—self-respecting girl pursue a man?"

But he saw that she was talking off, talking not to him, but to herself.

Negro Found Dead Thursday
Two Suspects Are Being Held For Questioning

Two local negroes were being held Thursday in connection with the death of Jasper Stuart, 22-year-old negro, who was found dead at the home of Dick Branon, negro, in the north section of Hope, early Thursday morning, city and county officers announced.

Dr. J. H. Weaver, county coroner, said Stuart's left arm was lacerated and that he had bled to death. No inquest will be held.

Circumstances of the death remained a mystery but officers continued to investigate late Thursday.

Two suspects, Willie Witherspoon and Elmer Hester, both negroes, were being held for questioning.

Defense Aided by WPA Work
Housekeeping Project Proves Valuable to Homes

National defense is concerned not only with men and equipment for the military branches of the government, but also with the physical fitness and social well being of all the people. People who are ill, hungry and discouraged cannot endure, either physically or mentally, in times of stress. The basic human needs must be met if we are to have a strong inner line of defense.

Several W. P. A. Welfare Projects are meeting these needs in a way and on a scale that they have been met by no other agency. Hundreds of thousands of people are better fed, healthier, better clothed, and more secure in family life as a result of the work provided and the services extended.

The importance of the W. P. A. Housekeeping Aide project is a program of national defense, which aims to make every American "sturdier in body, steadier in nerves, and surer in living" cannot be overemphasized. This project has long been doing vital work toward this end, reaching the groups of underprivileged people who are in greatest need of help in building up those defenses.

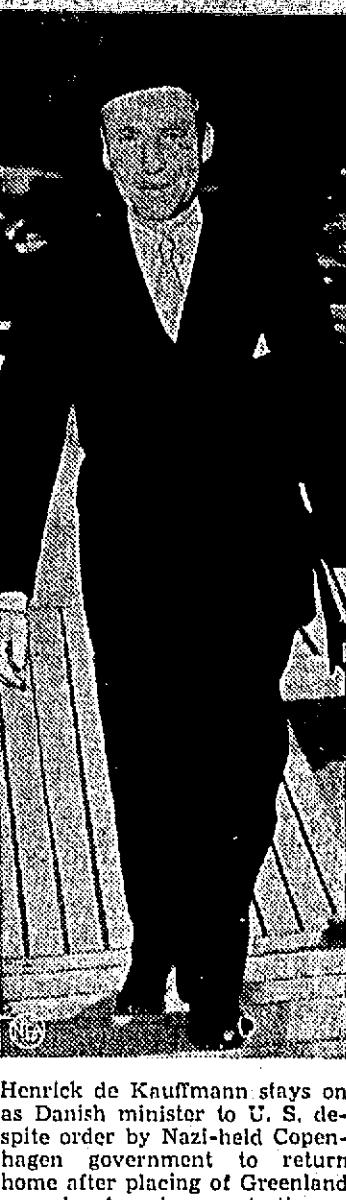

Since it is not possible for the public to see the housekeeping aides, as the workers on this project are termed, at work in homes, a visit to the local project training center, located at 116 1/2 W. 3rd Street, under the supervision of Mrs. Mary E. Duncan, would be most interesting and enlightening, as the operation of this project can best be explained at the training center.

In addition to receiving a pre-service training of three to five days at the training center, each worker has one full day's training at the center each week in Foods, Home Improvement, Cleaning, Health and Child Care, and Clothing.

Under these activities the aides are trained in:

- Preparing a variety of palatable dishes from one or two surplus commodities or low-cost foods; also, the preservation and conservation of food;
- The use of improvised cooking utensils such as aides often have to use in the homes being serviced;
- Cleaning, showing the use of improvised equipment and homemade cleaning preparations;
- Clothing, training in making over of discarded garments into children's

No Horse Racing on New Jersey Tracks

TRENTON—New Jersey legalized pari-mutuel betting, but not only will there be no racing in the state this year, but indications are there will be none in 1942. It is difficult to obtain steel for purposes other than national defense. There are objections from church people, and not the least reason is the inability of promoters to raise the $1,500,000 required to build and launch a track.
